THE VOICE OF TRANSPORTATION LABOR

“We have filed more complaints regarding fatigue at state and federal levels than all other safety complaints combined.”

—UTU National Legislative Director J.M. Brunkenhoefer

News & Notes

Amendment deadline set

CLEVELAND, Ohio – As provided for in Article 13 of the UTU Constitution, proposed amendments to the Constitution may be submitted by any subordinate body or International officer prior to 120 days before the convention begins.

The cut-off date for accepting proposed amendments is March 31, 2003.

All proposed amendments shall be submitted in writing to the General Secretary and Treasurer to be referred to the Constitution Committee.

Each proposal shall be submitted separately, typewritten on standard paper, be properly identified, with a clear and concise explanation given of the article to be amended.

Amtrak tickets on eBay

PHILADELPHIA – Add Amtrak tickets to the long list of travel-related goods and services you can bid for on eBay, according to the Philadelphia Inquirer. The railroad announced last month that it would make a limited number of tickets available on the online auction site as part of a three-month trial. Adult coach-class round-trip and one-way tickets are being offered between a variety of cities. Each posting notes the train route, dates available (usually a range), links to schedules, and the latest bid. Payment is by credit card. The site for bidding is <http://www.stores.ebay.com/amtrakauctions>.

Maglev train idea fades

BALTIMORE – Support for building a high-speed floating train that would carry passengers between Baltimore and Washington in 20 minutes appears to be dwindling in the face of a budget crisis and the loss of the region's Olympic bid, according to the Associated Press. Maryland is competing with Pittsburgh to win $950 million in federal money to build the nation's first maglev line. The Federal Railroad Administration plans to pick a winner by next fall, and the futuristic train could be in service by the end of the decade. The $4.4 billion magnetic levitation train is being edged off the list of Maryland's transportation priorities, officials say.

UTU fights to preserve locomotive inspections

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Your United Transportation Union has begun a fight on behalf of rail labor to prevent rail carriers from scrapping a daily locomotive inspection requirement. The UTU acted after the Association of American Railroads (AAR) petitioned the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) for permission to substitute so-called performance standards for existing FRA-mandated locomotive inspection requirements.

AAR officials once described FRA safety inspectors as mere “meter-maids.” Now, AAR wants to scrap the requirement for daily, detailed and signed written inspection reports. AAR also wants FRA to end the requirement for periodic (not to exceed 92 days) testing of gauges, electrical devices, visible insulation, clean cable connections and event recorders.

UTU International President Byron A. Boyd Jr. warned the AAR against taking “any action” on safety before negotiating with the UTU. In fact, the AAR petition ignores a plea from House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee Chairman Cong. Don Young (R-Alaska) that railroads “strive for as much common ground as possible (with their unions) so that we can make our transportation network stronger, healthier and safer.”

The reason given by the carriers for wanting to scrap safety tests is to “reduce costs significantly.” The AAR estimates some $400 million more could flow to carrier bottom lines if they were not required to inspect their locomotives for safety defects.

Performance standards as requested by the carriers would scrap locomotive safety inspections in favor of a requirement that railroads keep FRA-reportable accidents and injuries involving locomotives below a specified threshold. The AAR wants that threshold set as “the maximum number of accidents and injuries a railroad would be expected to have based upon the 10-year trend for all Class I railroads.” Railroads failing to meet that target would be required to develop unspecified “remedial action

Rail workers choose UTU

CLEVELAND, Ohio – Train and engine service employees on both the York Railway Company (YRC) and the Fort Worth & Western Railroad (FW&W) have chosen the United Transportation Union (UTU) as their collective bargaining representative.

The York Railway representation election stemmed from a purchase that created a single rail system from two separate systems. The 40-mile YRC was created as the result of the recent merger of the former Maryland & Pennsylvania Railroad (known as the “Ma & Pa”) with Yorkrail, Inc., following Ma & Pa's purchase by the Genesee & Wyoming.

Train and engine service employees on the former Maryland & Pennsylvania Railroad were represented by UTU Local 1722 in York, Pa.,

Roads opened to Mexican buses

WASHINGTON, D.C. – President Bush gave the go-ahead last month for Mexican buses and trucks to travel U.S. roads beyond commercial border zones where they had been restricted.

Environmental, labor, and trucking industry groups, however, have asked a federal court for an emergency stay to prevent Mexican buses and trucks from transporting people and goods throughout the U.S.

The petitioners, including Public Citizen and the Environmental Law Foundation, asked the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco to stop the U.S. government from processing applications from Mexican-based trucking firms to operate beyond the 20-mile commercial borders zones where they must now transfer their cargo to U.S. trucks. The groups allege that the

Local 422's pride always on display

Those looking for a good example of a proud UTU local whose members are involved with their union and community need look no further than Local 422 in Vancouver, B.C.

Originally a Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen lodge, the 100-year-old local includes more than 250 members and represents conductors, trainmen, yardmen and yardmasters on Canadian Pacific Railway's (CP) Vancouver Division, as well as employees serving the West Coast Express commuter rail operation.

And as Local Treasurer Mitch Newell pointed out, the local's members aren't just politically and socially active, they're resourceful, too.

"We did a joint venture with another one of the unions and went into the vending machine business," Newell said. "We purchased four machines, stocked them with candy and soft drinks, and use the income to support our ways-and-means fund. If a member gets hurt or sick, we can use the fund to help them out.

"Local 422 has a diverse team of executive and committee persons who are passionate about their work and their union," Newell said, "and who are committed to serving not only the local's members, but the entire labor movement. Interaction with organized workers outside the railway industry has proven beneficial to our members on many occasions."

Newell, a 53-year-old CP conductor who began his career in March 1970 and has been secretary since May 1990, said one of the local's officers belongs to a horse club that stages exhibitions. "We pay a fee to put up a sign at the functions. It's like advertising to let the public know we're here and that we contribute to the community," Newell said.

State Watch News from UTU State Legislative Boards

Illinois

UTU Illinois Legislative Director Joseph C. Szabo has been named co-chairperson of the Freight Railroad Subcommittee of Governor-elect Rod Blagojevich's Transportation Transition Team.

Serving with Szabo as co-chairperson will be Paul Nowicki, assistant vice president for government and policy with Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railway. Both will report to Cong. William O. Lipinski (D-Ill.), who will chair the Transportation Transition Team for Gov.-elect Blagojevich.

Szabo will be providing advice on safety practices of railroads, rail-highway grade crossing safety and the thorny issue of passenger trains operating over freight railroad tracks.

In other news, the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) has found that the Norfolk Southern Railroad failed to perform required monthly maintenance on a device used to test employees' blood-alcohol levels after acting on a complaint filed by the Illinois Legislative Board.

The FRA further found that the device had been out of calibration since last February when it was used to test a UTU member employed by NS.

In a November 1 letter to Szabo, FRA Regional Administrator Laurence H. Hasvold said, "FRA will submit violations against the Norfolk Southern Railroad for improperly using an Evidential Breath Test (EBT) machine while it was 'out of calibration' for the confirmation test and for not performing the required external calibration test every thirty (30) days as required by the operations manual on both EBTs used in this test in question."

Violations of FRA rules typically result in fines.

"The penalty Norfolk Southern pays is not really the issue here," Szabo said. "The real point is that when employees alert the union to possible misconduct by a railroad, the union can follow up and get results if the allegation is documented."

Szabo called employee activism a "sleeping giant" that can be very powerful when used constructively.

Congratulations

Following last month's issue of the UTU News that listed two UTU members who were elected to state office, the International has received reports of other UTU members who were elected at the state and local levels.

"I am very proud to hear about UTU members who have been elected to their state legislative bodies and other local offices," said UTU International President Byron A. Boyd Jr. "I applaud not only their involvement in the political process, but their efforts in service to their communities."

Newly elected UTU members include:

Arizona

James Critchley (807) Precinct and State Committeeman

David Shearer (807) Precinct and State Committeeman

James Woloshin (807) Precinct Committeeman

Colorado

Buffy McFadyen, spouse of Paul Ray (202), state representative

Illinois

Eddie Johnson (1258) state representative

Montana

Bill Wilson (730) state representative

Brennan Ryan (730) state representative

Nebraska

Gary Goodell (934) Alliance city council

Kevin Dahlstedt (934) Alliance city council

Wyoming

George Bagby (866) state representative

P. Wayne Reese (28) state representative

Texas

State Legislative Director Connie English was one of five directors appointed to the new Bexar County Rural Rail Transportation District last month by the Commissioners Court.

The appointments, said Economic Development Foundation President Mario Hernandez, will serve notice to the Union Pacific Railroad that Bexar County is well on the way to rounding up the financing for laying new tracks to the site for a proposed Toyota manufacturing plant in San Antonio.

Toyota requires prospective manufacturing sites to have competing rail service, but the proposed site is served only by Union Pacific, which is refusing to negotiate dual-tracking rights with Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railroad. BNSF is the only other national carrier serving the city.

"These board members were carefully chosen," said Hernandez. "To move this project forward, you have to have people who can influence policy in Washington...influence the movement of money in both Austin and Washington. These people also bring the technical expertise of building a railroad to the table."

"I am honored to serve on this district," English said. "I was kind of startled to find UTU had that much clout, more than some city officials."

Also serving on the district are former San Antonio Mayor and Clinton Administration Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros, and RailTex, Inc., founder Bruce Flohr.

Oregon

State Legislative Director Delmer Hanson would like to remind all UTU members living in Oregon that state law allows a tax credit for all political contributions, including those to TPEL, the UTU's political action committee (PAC).

"Your state tax credit is your contribution, limited to $100 on a joint return or $50 on a single or separate return," Hanson said.

TPEL contributions help candidates that support UTU positions secure and retain elected office.

The legislative assembly will convene on Jan. 13, 2003, and Hanson said that the UTU's pre-election efforts will make a difference in the upcoming session.

"Even though we have a Republican-controlled House and the Senate is split, the Oregon Legislative Board has developed a working relationship across the board. I (also) feel that Governor-elect Kulongoski will be sympathetic to our needs," Hanson said. "I would like to thank the (local) legislative representatives for all their hard work and also thank our members who have continually volunteered to make TPEL contributions, along with those who have recently made this commitment."

Bus Department

By Percy Palmer

New regulations affect bus drivers

There are new laws and regulations that went into effect in the past year which will affect the bus industry. Prior to September of last year, traffic violations, in most states, committed in your private vehicle would not affect your commercial drivers license. The Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA) now says that if you are convicted of driving passenger cars under the influence of drugs or alcohol, or lose your regular license because of traffic violations, your commercial drivers license will also be taken away. Complete information is available via the following link: <http://www.fmcsa.dot.gov/aboutus/aboutus.htm>.

The FMCSA is requiring states to enforce this law within three years or they could lose their federal highway funds and be stripped of their power to issue licenses.

We, as bus operators, must also be aware of new sensitivities: A bus driver was on a trip from New Jersey to New York and ran into traffic problems. He went off route in a seemingly good-faith effort to get his passengers where they were going on schedule. According to the report, some passengers began making fun of the driver, yelling things like, "Do you know what you are doing up there? Do you know where you are going?" It is alleged that the driver responded by saying, "I'm taking you to the Taliban." In a matter of minutes, 18 police cars surrounded the bus and officers, with guns drawn, ordered everyone off with their hands in the air. The driver was arrested for what seemed to be a joking response to some irate passengers' antagonistic verbal chastisement.

Keep up the good work and stay alert.

Yardmasters

By Don Carver

GTW yardmasters vote new contract

Grand Truck Western (GTW) and its yardmasters have initialed a tentative three-year contract. Interest-based bargaining has proven its value as a negotiating process in the GTW negotiations. General Chairperson Lenny Forchione led the yardmaster committee negotiating team in this round. Through diligence and determination, many difficult issues were resolved. The proposed agreement addresses the issues of increased wages, entry rates, matching 401(k) payments and numerous work-rule improvements. The ratification ballots will be tallied January 15, 2003. Following ratification, the contract provisions will be more fully discussed.

On occasion, crew consist violations create problems for yardmasters. Most, if not all, crew consist agreements contain language that bars the supplanting of a crewmember. Some of our yardmaster members grant a request to watch a track being shoved or, in some instances, take it on their own to watch shoves. Every year yardmasters receive varying degrees of discipline as a result of these actions. Permanent dismissal has been assessed against yardmasters who have relieved the crews of their responsibility of watching a shove, only to become distracted which resulted in a shove out and derailment. The Federal Railroad Administration has deemed the yardmaster who watches a shove to be attached to the crew. We should not be violating crew consist agreements. More importantly, we should not be putting our jobs in jeopardy when the carrier has agreed not to supplant a crewmember.

America's railroads rolling dice on safety

If you are looking for the oldest, established dice game in America, visit railroad tracks.

Every hour, railroads are rolling the dice on safety. Crews operating trains carrying deadly chemicals are being pushed beyond the ability to remain alert.

Railroads are ignoring warnings from the National Transportation Safety Board, the Department of Transportation and America's leading sleep scientists.

Fatigue in the cab is as common as dew and frost on the windshield this time of year. It's a crying shame. Too often it is a deadly shame.

And, one of these moments, it could become so horrific a shame that every newspaper, television station, radio station and lawmaker will be questioning how such a terrible public tragedy could have been allowed to happen.

"There are days my husband is so exhausted he literally does not know what day it is," writes one wife in a letter produced elsewhere in this issue. "He comes in at midnight and is called out by 5 a.m." She fears her husband's dream of becoming a railroader will become her nightmare.

On pages 6 and 7, UTU general chairpersons report on the problem and describe pilot projects that show promise. Much more good faith effort is needed from the carriers.

Until they get serious about solving the problem, those dice continue to be rolled – and one of these moments they will roll snake eyes.

WASHINGTON WATCH

By James Brunkenhoefer

Rail-worker fatigue is a family matter

Most North Americans awake, have breakfast and commute to work, and return to their families in the evening. They attend their children's ball games and dance recitals, participate in meetings with teachers, attend religious events and occasionally enjoy concerts and other recreational events with family members and friends.

This is a life most UTU members may only dream about. Their lifestyle is different, whether they operate buses or freight trains. They work around the clock and, too often, without days off or sufficient hours off to permit adequate rest.

Too often, their family lives are a mess. Too often, the lives of their loved ones suffer because of their irregular work schedules. Far too often, railroad families have been broken apart by divorce due to the stresses inflicted on all family members by unpredictable and unreliable work schedules, absences and fatigue.

The fact is that most UTU members have no idea when they will go to work. When they go to work, they have no reasonable expectation of how long they will work. Forget about what time they will get home; too often they don't know what day they will get home!

When they do get home, they don't have the foggiest idea of how long they will be there. All they know is that, at the ring of the phone, they are expected to be back on the job. They literally are prisoners to the telephone, the cell phone or the pager.

You are reason for success

By Byron A. Boyd Jr.
International President

The Association of American Railroads has been sending a little book to the media, financial analysts and lawmakers. It's a little red book and it tells a very interesting story about productivity, or how much more valuable work is being done by every employee. It's called, "Railroad Facts: 2002 Edition," and says railroads "improved their productivity substantially" last year and, as a result, "achieved solid financial results."

No company – not even railroads – can improve productivity. Only people can do that. And the people who have improved productivity and profits for railroads are the people reading these words – you!

Here is what the Association of American Railroads is saying about you:

- The high-quality service you helped provide allowed railroads to increase annual freight revenue by almost half a billion dollars.

- Your efforts helped railroads improve their profits (operating revenue minus operating expenses) by almost 5%.

- Railroad shareholders enjoyed an improved return on their invested capital that reached almost 8%, which is quite better than most investors did with stocks, bonds or savings accounts.

- Railroads increased their share of intercity freight ton-miles by almost a full percentage point at the expense of trucks and barges.

The amount of freight hauled per employee has almost doubled since 1990, while freight hauled per employee hour since 1990 has increased by 85%.

That, brothers and sisters, is a success story and you are the success.

The AAR's little red book has some sad numbers in it also, however.

- Accidents per million train miles have been increasing steadily since 1997.

- Injuries and illnesses per 100 full-time employees, which had been decreasing until 1996, have shown no improvement since 1997.

These are two areas that concern us all and these numbers should be seen as warnings that the carriers, the Federal Railroad Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board should take seriously. In meetings with general chairpersons this month and next, I shall be discussing these and other safety problems and seeking suggestions as to how your UTU might be the catalyst of change to improve these safety numbers.

Given the weakness of our economy, the serious economic ills facing airlines, numerous corporate bankruptcies and the devastation of unemployment and loss of health care and pension benefits faced by so many Americans, UTU members are entering 2003 with unprecedented job security and solid economic gains.

Should we be satisfied? No, and you can be certain we are working everyday to improve future wages, benefits and working conditions.

The immediate task is protection of your health care benefit, solving the fatigue problem and jump-starting safety improvements on every railroad.

Special meetings inform, boost unity

CLEVELAND, Ohio – UTU members from all levels of the organization recently attended three events designed to share information and boost unity, including a meeting of general chairpersons' associations and a mini-regional meeting – both in Tucson, Ariz. – as well as a special "Union Day" event put together by Local 243 in Fort Worth, Tex.

In the spring and fall of each year, the Western General Chairperson's Committee (formerly the Southwestern General Chairperson's Committee) and the Union Pacific General Chairperson's Association join for a round-table meeting. Those attending discuss current issues, compare worksite developments, share problem-solving insights and skills, and learn the latest information from various guest speakers and presenters.

Most recently, the general chairpersons' meeting was held in Tucson, Ariz., in conjunction with an annual mini-regional meeting hosted by the members of two Tucson-based Union Pacific locals, Local 807 and Local 1800, and coordinated by Local 807 Legislative Representative Thomas F. Moore Jr.

The general chairpersons met November 21 and 22 at the Doubletree Hotel at Reid Park, with the mini-regional at the same location on November 23.

At the general chairpersons' meeting, UTU International President Byron A. Boyd Jr., Assistant President Paul C. Thompson and General Secretary and Treasurer Daniel E. Johnson addressed the group, and a presentation was delivered by Webb Rousse, a representative of the Quick Internet company, who talked about ways to build and maintain databases and make information available via the Internet.

Meanwhile, at the mini-regional meeting, nearly 200 members and their families enjoyed a social event offering a wealth of information and an opportunity for attendees to talk with President Boyd, Assistant President Thompson and General Secretary and Treasurer Johnson.

Also at the mini-regional were various UTU general chairpersons and state legislative representatives, Railroad Retirement Board Representative Gale Bowman, UnitedHealthcare Representative Charlene Payne, UTU Insurance Association (UTUIA) representatives, and numerous union officers from all levels.

But Tucson wasn't the site of all the action. A month earlier, on October 22, the members of Union Pacific Local 243 in Fort Worth, Tex., held their annual "Union Day" event in Fort Worth.

Among the 80 members, guests and local and state representatives who attended the event and luncheon were various UTU International officers, said Local 243 Secretary Randy L. Reed.

Gift certificates to local restaurants and sporting goods stores, along with a UTU jacket and a knife made by a member of the local, were raffled off to raise funds for Local 243's L.E. Thompson, who was recently injured in an automobile accident, Reed said.

During the "Union Days" event, Local 243 sponsored a blood drive for members and their families.

RRB offers new online service

CHICAGO – The Railroad Retirement Board (RRB) has announced a new service that will allow Railroad Retirement annuitants to view their service months and compensation at any time via the Internet.

With the use of a personal computer equipped with an Internet connection, railroad workers will be able to view and print their record of railroad service months and compensation 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

This new Internet service is available on the RRB's web site at <http://www.rrb.gov>.

"This is a great on-line service," said UTU Retiree Program Coordinator Larry Davis. "Especially if there is no RRB regional office in your area or if calling the nearest office requires you to place a long-distance call."

To access the RRB's new online service, annuitants should first go to the RRB's website at the address provided above. Users should then click on "Mainline Services" at the top of the menu bar on the left-hand side of the page.

From the "Mainline Services" page, you can access your service and compensation history, request a replacement for your Medicare card, request a proof of your monthly annuity rate, request a duplicate tax statement, and create or change your username (PIN) and password.

Currently, a PIN and password are only necessary to access the service and compensation history. The PIN and password will also be required for some additional Internet services that will be available on the RRB website in the future, the board said.

To create your online account and obtain your username (PIN) and password from the RRB, simply click on "Create" and follow the instructions. A username (PIN) and password will be sent to you within 10 days through the U.S. mail.

Once you have obtained your username (PIN) and password, return to the RRB homepage, click on "Mainline Services" and set up your account.

After you have established your account, you will be able to access your service and compensation history, the RRB said.

Member serves as Santa Claus

Retired member John Locke of Local 770 in Heavener, Okla., who was honored as the UTUIA Volunteer of the Year for 2002, recently served as Santa Claus for the "Kansas City Southern's Christmas Special." The specially equipped train featured a reproduction of a steam locomotive, a flat car hauling Santa's sleigh, and two decked-out cabooses, with fireplaces and Christmas trees, for Santa and his elves. "Santa" Locke visited with more than 1,500 children over two days. "There were some touching moments, I'll tell you what," Locke said. "Some of their stories would break your heart. They would hug you and tell you they loved you, and many didn't want anything but a little care and a hug." Locke said he was looking forward to serving as Santa Claus next year.

Railroad workers' fatigue is accident waiting to happen

Richard Karstetter
General Chairperson
Union Pacific

"Fatigue is a serious problem. The carrier's lack of interest in hiring people is the cause. The lack of employees is the basis of most all these problems. The carrier has been hiring, but it's too little too late. If they had been hiring all along we wouldn't be in the mess we are in. The carrier is promising to hire more people, but it is going to take a while to get enough.

"The carrier is calling people all the time during their off-duty hours, when they are at home or when the calls are not expected, trying to get them to work jobs they don't stand for. Our members are irate. It's the worst I can remember.

"People the railroads hire now won't accept the conditions being imposed. People want more time with their families. Our younger members were unhappy about entry rates, but we fixed that in the last contract and that has helped a lot.

"We had 21 work/rest agreements working fine, but they were wiped out about a year ago. That is when the unrest among the troops really started because employees now can't get undisturbed rest.

"I don't want government intervention. I would rather see something negotiated that the parties could live with. A negotiated agreement is better for everyone involved. However, if the carriers won't come to the negotiating table, it may be time for something to be done."

“ If railroads continue to refuse to sit down with the UTU to solve the fatigue problem mutually, then the UTU will find its own solution.”

—UTU International President Byron A. Boyd Jr.

“ We have filed more complaints regarding fatigue at state and federal levels than all other safety complaints combined.”

—UTU National Legislative Director J.M. Brunkenhoefer

Delbert Strunk
General Chairperson
Norfolk Southern

"Fatigue is absolutely a problem on Norfolk Southern. I have heard quite a few complaints. It is a problem because the carrier is critically short of employees. We are seeing instances of employees denied the right to mark off. Our road crews are very over-worked. They are working 300 to 400 hours a month, and some even more than that. They are working too much to have any quality of life.

"We have been trying to work with NS to formulate work/rest programs. We are trying to give assigned rest days to the extra boards, and assigned service for freight-pool employees with specific days off. We are trying to get to where pool crews can work so many days and then have specified days off.

"In the Chicago District, we have a program where road-pool crews have to be available for 14 days, then they get two days off; and Friday-Saturday-Sunday off after the third 14-day cycle. We are still at the trial-and-error stage with these projects.

"NS is taking the position that if it costs them anything, they are not going to do it. They are putting a monetary value on (quality of life). The railroads must make an honest effort to hire enough people so they can give time off when needed. About 60 percent of my members have been hired since 1985 and the turnover rate is around 50 percent. The younger guys won't put up with the way the employer is treating them.

"I'd like to keep away from any type of government intervention and a one-size-fits-all solution. I don't want the government coming in and saying when our guys can and can't work."

“ To combat fatigue-related accidents, “there are very basic things to control such as minimum rest, length of off-duty periods, fatigue recovery time, long-term work limits and time of day acknowledgment.”

— Former NASA sleep scientist Dr. Mark Rosekind

“ Coming to work sleep deprived is like coming to work drunk.”
—Stanford University sleep scientist Dr. William Dement

“ When it comes to fatigue, every person at every level of an organization...must personally be responsible.”

—U.S. Department of Transportation

“ Mae Campbell
Wife of a UTU member, mother

"My hope is that a positive resolution on the fatigue issue takes place before some disastrous and tragic event occurs. Wives and families suffer, too, from this epidemic of exhausted and absent husbands and fathers.

"Having been a railroader's wife for seven years, I have learned that railroading is not family friendly. I know I'm not alone among wives whose husbands miss every holiday, every birthday and other important family events. When my own husband had what we thought was a serious medical problem, it took two months before he could finally make the necessary doctor appointment.

"There are days my husband is so exhausted he literally does not know what day it is. My niece thought I was joking, so she put him to the test. He was off by three days. I watch my husband's physical condition deteriorate right before my eyes.

"The eight-hour rest rule is a joke. My husband rarely gets to stay home for eight hours since he has to commute to and from his on-duty point. I fear that he will fall asleep at the wheel some night driving home. He comes in at midnight and is called out by 5 a.m. Or he is in at 5 a.m. and is called out by 10 a.m. This is cruel and inhumane.

"If he were involved in an accident, crew members would be drug tested and some excuse invented to blame them for unsafe practices. No one would bother to consider their schedules and see how many runs they've made or lack of sleep they had prior to the incident.

"When my husband got this job, he was so excited. He told me of his passion and fascination with the trains as a child. To get to run the trains was a boyhood dream come true. I now fear that his dream may well be my nightmare someday."

“ Anonymous wife of a UTU member

"I am a wife of a 37-year railroad employee. Fatigue and harassment are working hand-in-hand to create unsafe conditions and destroy morale. Tired employees disgusted with working conditions are accidents waiting to happen. When my husband requires extra sleep because of colds or other illnesses, or time off with his family because of important family events or family medical emergencies, managers accuse him of being lazy, harass him with investigations and threaten him with loss of his job.

"Train operating crews are the backbone of the railroad, but they are treated like disposable items. Railroaders with responsibilities to move passenger trains and freight trains with deadly hazardous materials deserve better than to be treated this way. Safe railroads require rested, dedicated employees."

John Hancock
General Chairperson
CSX/Florida East Coast

"We have fatigue issues on both the Florida East Coast and CSX.

"The FEC issued a directive that all crews must be shown relieved of their duties at 11 hours and 55 minutes after they went on duty and then transported back to the terminal. The problem is they sit out on trains waiting to be picked up. The carrier is unable to properly relieve these crews. They may end up being compensated for 12 to 15 hours, but then the carrier expects them back at work eight hours later. This creates a problem. They can't get at least 10 hours of rest.

"On CSX we also are experiencing issues of crews left on trains an excessive amount of time. They may complete 12 hours on duty, but they are out there up to 16 hours before they are relieved of duty.

"Both of these problems would be best resolved by a scheduled railroad, where employees can prepare for uninterrupted rest. With the computers we have today, there is no reasonable excuse why the carrier cannot project calls for crews.

"The carrier is not hiring enough employees to allow for reasonable layoffs. They treat employees like pieces of equipment. They won't hire more and work the devil out of the ones they have.

"We are working with FEC to get halfway trains going — jobs where employees switch trains halfway through a job, so they end up back at their home terminals at the end of the day. The employees want a more defined meeting point so we don't have a situation where one crew works 12 to 14 hours, while the other works eight.

"On CSX, we have had a pilot project going between Richmond, Va., and Rocky Mount, N.C., for a few years. This pool has three scheduled days off per payroll period. They are on 10 days and off for three. They like it; they can look up to 14 months in advance, and see when their days off will be. We need to do more of this."

Dave Snyder
General Chairperson
Burlington Northern Santa Fe

"I represent about 450 switchmen on the former Great Northern (now part of Burlington Northern Santa Fe). Fatigue is always a problem. But about a year and a half ago, we came up with a solution for the guys who want it. Now, all those on extra boards have two consecutive days off like the regular guys. For five days they work or are on call. At the end of the five-day period, they have two days off. They work the same five days every week.

"About half the guys in my committee are taking advantage of it, and others are considering it. As the word spreads, I believe we will have it everywhere. Members vote to approve it location-by-location. The carrier likes it, too. It's a win for both sides. The extra-board guys do not lay off because they know they have two days-off coming. Before, the carrier worked the heck out of everybody they had, and without days off, it got pretty frantic. Fatigue was a real problem, until we came up with this project."

Old Timers' Club plans for the future

Back in 1979, Franklin D. Scott and a handful of others working on Atlantic Coast Line Railroad (ACL) had the idea that they might miss each other once they retired.

F. D. Scott

Today, Brother Scott, a member of Local 1105 in Wilmington, N.C., serves as president of the organization he helped create so he and fellow employees would be able keep in touch.

"There were six or eight of us who got the Wilmington Railroad Old Timers Club going before I retired," Scott said. "I'm about the last of the founders. The only eligibility requirement was that you had to have 25 years on the railroad."

At one time, the club counted some 300 members, mostly from the ACL. Though membership isn't quite so high, the club members are on track for a resurgence.

"We meet four times a year, but we're planning a regular monthly breakfast meeting. Retirees in the area should know they're welcome to join us."

The club's annual dues are just $7 for couples and $5 for singles, with the money used for a sunshine fund and social functions. The club also plays a role in supporting the Wilmington Railroad Museum. "We're restoring a steam locomotive, and were lucky enough to find someone from the old Southern Railroad shops to dismantle the engine."

After serving in the Army, Scott began his career on the Great Northern as a switchman in November 1953, joining the Switchmen's Union of North America in Fargo, N.D. "I got laid off, we visited my wife's family in Fayetteville, N.C., and that's when I started working on the ACL." A merger changed the railroad into the Seaboard Coast Line, and when Scott retired in December 1994, it was part of CSXT.

Along the way, Scott spent 15 years as a chairperson with Local 1105, and eight years as assistant state legislative director.

Contact Scott by writing to him at 3025 Rachel Place, Wilmington, NC 28409, calling him at (910) 792-9280 or by sending e-mail to him at wdnaxle@ec.rr.com.

Early retirement plan boosts lifetime maximum to $84,100

CLEVELAND, Ohio – As of Jan. 1, 2003, the lifetime maximum benefit for each individual covered under the Railroad Employees National Early Retirement Major Medical Benefit Plan (UnitedHealthcare's Policy GA-46000) increased from $79,000 to $84,100.

In general, the GA-46000 policy provides retirees health and welfare coverage from the time they retire until their 65th birthday or Medicare coverage begins.

The lifetime maximum is the total amount the policy will pay to an individual receiving coverage under the policy.

Those who retire and are eligible for GA-46000 can also purchase supplemental coverage under GA-23111, Plan E. Generally, Plan E pays 70% of the expenses not paid under GA-46000 and has a lifetime maximum benefit of $200,000.

Generally, those who benefit from the GA-46000 policy are retirees who, on the day before applying for their retirement annuity, were covered under the Railroad Employees National Health & Welfare Plan or the NRC/UTU Health and Welfare Plan. The policy also provides coverage to eligible dependents who are not covered under Medicare.

The lifetime maximum benefit is adjusted each year based on the medical cost component of the Consumer Price Index.

The increase to $84,100 is the result of negotiations between labor and railroad management that ultimately led to passage of the Railroad Retirement and Survivors Improvement Act, which was signed into law Dec. 21, 2001.

For individuals thinking about retirement in the near future, health coverage is an important consideration. The information below summarizes the eligibility requirements for coverage under GA-46000:

Eligibility rules for age annuitants:

An age annuitant (as opposed to a disability annuitant) is eligible for this coverage if he applies for a 60/30 annuity (retirement at age 60 with 30 years of service) for which he is eligible under the Railroad Retirement Act on or after the date he reaches age 60, or anytime during the three months prior to his 60th birthday, providing the employee continued working into the month before the month in which he turns 60. On the day before applying for the annuity, the employee must be covered (other than under COBRA) under the Railroad Employees National Health and Welfare Plan or the NRC/UTU Health and Welfare Plan.

Eligibility rules for disability annuitants:

A disability annuitant is eligible for coverage under GA-46000 if he has a current connection with the railroad industry, has applied for a disability annuity to which he is entitled, and is covered (other than under COBRA) by the Railroad Employees National Health and Welfare Plan or the NRC/UTU Health and Welfare Plan on the day before he reaches age 60, the date he became disabled, or the date his railroad service totaled 30 years – whichever date is latest.

Enrollment necessary

It is very important to remember that railroads will not report employees to UnitedHealthcare as being eligible for GA-46000. Those who are retiring must enroll themselves and their families with UnitedHealthcare. This can be done in two ways:

- You can purchase GA-23111, Plan E. Eligibility for GA-46000 will be verified when enrollment for GA-23111 is processed. ID cards for both GA-46000 and GA-23111 will be sent to the retiree. A booklet explaining Plan E benefits and an enrollment form can be obtained by calling UnitedHealthcare.

- You can complete and return the "Retiree and Dependent Information" form found in the center of the GA-46000 employee booklet. Eligibility will be verified and a GA-46000 ID card will be sent to the retiree. Employees or retirees can obtain a GA-46000 booklet from their employers or union.

Those with questions about GA-46000 should call UnitedHealthcare at the toll-free number 1-800-842-5252.

Roads opened

Bush administration failed to complete a full review of the impact the move will have on air quality in the U.S.

"As a matter of law, the administration is required to first assess the environmental consequences before allowing tens of thousands of these trucks into the American heartland," Al Meyerhoff, an attorney for the plaintiffs, said in a statement. "Increases in air pollution, especially from older, largely unregulated vehicles, present increased risks of asthma, cancer and other respiratory ills."

"This will have a tremendous impact on safety as well as the public's perception of buses on the road resulting in an inclination for making more unnecessary complaints against our drivers," Vice President Percy Palmer, director of the UTU Bus Department, said. "Most United States bus drivers undergo six to eight weeks of rigorous training and operate as highly skilled professionals. We notice the administration claim that they will be subject to the same laws rules and regulations, but there is no mention of skills behind the wheel. It is okay to police the border to ensure the proper certificates, but over-the-road safety is our concern. Those drivers should be trained and tested in the U.S., as well, to ensure the similar degree of skills."

The trucks and buses won't be on U.S. highways until the Department of Transportation can review applications from carriers. It must then grant qualifying carriers provisional operating authority, according to the Department of Transportation.

The decision comes nearly a year after Bush said he wanted to allow Mexican buses and trucks on U.S. roads, in compliance with a provision of the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Bush's action modifies a 1982 moratorium that banned Mexican trucks from the United States.

Many Mexican buses and trucks already travel across the border, the majority through Texas ports of entry. They had been restricted to commercial zones in the four border states of Texas, California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Carriers will only be allowed to make international trips and not trips between U.S. points.

Workers say UTU

while train and engine service employees on the former Yorkrail, Inc., were represented by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters Local 430 in York.

The YRC operates in the York and Hanover, Pa., areas and connects with NS and CSXT. The FW&W interchanges with KCS, BNSF and UP, and includes an excursion steam line in Texas.

"On behalf of the members and officers of this organization, it's my privilege to congratulate the employees of the York Railway Company and the Fort Worth & Western, and welcome them into the UTU family," International President Byron A. Boyd Jr. said. "I thank these employees for putting their faith and trust in the UTU."

"I pledged that the UTU would protect the seniority and the rights of YRC employees to their current jobs, while expanding their work opportunities on the merged rail system, and I want to assure those who were formerly represented by the Teamsters that I stand by that pledge," Boyd said.

Inspections

plans" rather than restore daily and periodic inspections, according to the AAR-sought revision.

The UTU has documented repeated incidents by every railroad of under-reporting accidents and injuries. The UTU also has documented within railroads a culture of intimidation and fear intended to discourage employees from reporting injuries and unsafe conditions. Furthermore, railroads repeatedly have opposed legislation increasing whistleblower protection, which would subject officials threatening employees to criminal prosecution.

"Putting the railroad fox in charge of the locomotive-safety hen house would only increase the incentive for railroad officials to underreport accidents and injuries and intimidate employees from reporting them," Boyd said.

"The AAR proposal for a waiver goes to the heart of the safety of a locomotive," UTU told the FRA in opposing the AAR petition. "Nothing is more important to the proper operation of a locomotive than for the crew to know that it is safe to operate. The AAR's suggestion for a performance standard will not assure safety of rail operations."

AAR's executive vice president, Charles Dettmann, responded to the UTU that AAR "would not progress the proposal further before discussing it in full with President Boyd and other UTU officials." Dettmann also assured Boyd that the carriers would "not" propose or pursue any changes that might cause sanitary conditions in locomotives to deteriorate.

UTU National Legislative Director James Brunkenhoefer said that following UTU involvement, the AAR proposal has come to a "dead stop" at the FRA.

UTUIA seeks 2003 Volunteer of the Year

The United Transportation Union Insurance Association is looking for a special person to honor as its 2003 Volunteer of the Year.

Do you regularly volunteer at a hospital or nursing home? Do you lead a Boy Scout or Girl Scout troop or work with the handicapped? Are you involved in some other activity that benefits those in your community?

If so, we would like to know about it.

A panel of judges at the UTU International will review all submissions and select the 2003 Volunteer of the Year.

The individual selected as UTUIA Volunteer of the Year will receive a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond and a plaque of appreciation from UTUIA.

Additionally, he or she will be honored at the 2003 UTU/UTUIA Regional Meeting nearest his or her home (all expenses paid by UTUIA).

Also, 20 runners-up will be selected to receive certificates of appreciation for their volunteer efforts.

Deadline for submission of nominations is Friday, February 28, 2003.

The outstanding individual will be notified by registered mail, and certificates of appreciation will be forwarded to runners-up as soon as possible.

Decision of UTUIA judges is final. Previous nominees may be nominated again; however, former Volunteers of the Year are ineligible to receive awards.

The Volunteer of the Year program is designed to accomplish many things, not the least of which is the opportunity for UTUIA to let its fraternal light shine. It also provides an opportunity for UTUIA to recognize its volunteers for their outstanding contributions to others.

The nomination form should be mailed to: UTUIA Volunteer of the Year, Attn.: Sandra Kranick, UTU/UTUIA Fraternal Coordinator, 14600 Detroit Ave., Cleveland, OH 44107-4250. Don't forget to include a separate sheet of paper describing your volunteer activities.

UTUIA Scholarship: The Key to Success

A message from UTU International President Byron A. Boyd Jr.

Education is the key to success. The key to an education can be a United Transportation Union Insurance Association scholarship.

With college enrollment time upon us, we strongly urge all eligible persons to take a few minutes to fill out the UTUIA scholarship application form printed below and apply for a UTUIA scholarship. It will be one of the smartest things they ever do.

This is the 29th year UTUIA is making available 50 continuing $500 scholarships for its members, and the sons, daughters and grandchildren of its members. We are very proud of our scholarship program, a pride that comes from helping thousands of college students over the years.

We realize the amount awarded, $500 a year, doesn't meet the full cost of the recipient's education, but in this way we can help a larger number of students with educational costs. They may use the scholarship money for tuition, learning materials or other related expenses.

UTUIA scholarship winners will receive the full amount of the award each year for up to four years of undergraduate study as long as they maintain a satisfactory academic record.

With a UTUIA scholarship, we hope to give the recipient the opportunity for a full-time education instead of a part-time education, day school instead of night school, higher education instead of basic training.

We are proud also in knowing that UTUIA scholarship recipients are enrolled in some of the finest and most prestigious colleges and universities in the world. We also can point proudly to the many achievements of past scholarship winners who have contributed so much to our great nation.

UTUIA is proud and happy to provide these scholarships for they are an opportunity for achievement. The success of deserving students is our success and the benefits are boundless. The key to success is education, and the key to education is a UTUIA scholarship. Take a minute to apply for the chance of a lifetime.

As the saying goes: "If you think education is expensive, try ignorance."

Byron A. Boyd, Jr.
International President
